DETAILED ACTION

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 12/30/04 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 2, 4-20, and 22-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schweitzer et al. (U.S. Pat. # 5,203,659) in view of Hiroki.

The Schweitzer et al. ('659) patent shows a mechanism that substantially contains the limitations as set forth in the above claims except that its first and second clamping devices (42,44) are not disposed one above the other in a vertical arrangement so that they can substantially remove and deposit two different plates.

However, Hiroki shows a pair of vertically aligned clamps (25,26) individually movable in a common plane to simultaneously deposit and remove processed and unprocessed substrates, respectively, within a magazine (see Figs. 12-15 and col. 9, lines 4-36 of the specification).

Art Unit: 3652

Accordingly, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to arrange two additional vertically moveable clamping devices directly below the two existing clamping devices (42,44) of the Schweitzer et al. assembly as taught by Hiroki in order to increase the production capability of the resulting device.

In regard to claim 20, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to provide any well known actuating means for the clamp, such as pneumatic, electric, or magnetic means, especially since applicant has not specifically disclosed that any particular actuator solves any stated problem or is for any critical purpose, and it appears that the device would perform equally well with any commonly used actuator.

It is also pointed out that the modified Schweitzer et al. ('659) system could obviously function the method steps in the order listed in claims 6 or 11 of the instant application, or in the reverse order, depending on the specific process being performed on the chips or wafers.

3. Claims 3 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schweitzer et al. (U.S. Pat. # 5,203,659) in view of Hiroki as applied to claims 1 and 15 above, and further in view of Somekh et al..

The patent to Somekh et al. shows a carrier plate (40) having four straight sides generally forming a rectangular structure.

It would have been obvious to form the chip-carrier plates of the modified Schweitzer et al. device into a generally rectangular or square shape, depending on the design of the magazine useable therewith, as taught by Somekh et al. so that the plates better conform to receiving space in the magazine and/or processing stations.

Specification

4. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the specification improperly refers to specific claims by their claim numbers (see page 3, lines 23 and 24). It is pointed out that when amending the specification, applicant must submit a marked-up copy of the entire paragraph being amended. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Objections

5. Claims 1 and 6 are objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 1, line 12, it appears that the word "removes" should be changed to --remove--.

In claim 1, line 14, it appears that the word --plate-- should be inserted immediately after the word "carrier"

In claim 6, line 11, it appears that the word "plates" should be changed to --plate-. Appropriate correction is required.
